[2007]

There will be those memories you will remember and then there will be those you will never forget. College at Arkansas State University is filled with those unforgettable times that build the way you will become in the future. The randomness of day-to-day activities is the spice of life.

Why should a yearbook document those everyday occurrences that are routine? No one wants to remember sitting in class the same way you did every other day. You, as a student, want to see those events that you thought you missed out on or heard stories about the next day in class. Those random midnight trips to IHOP, when you should have been studying for that test, or that "I can't believe she wore that" outfit your sorority sister wore to the Pike BoneDance are special moments to be treasured. The way people started sharing all sorts of random information on Facebook, the new slang of cutting off words, and the unimaginable close feeling of family with the people you would see daily are times to share with the future.

Memories are said to be forever, but when you're old and gray, you can have a piece of the best part of your life by capturing the unlimited academics that prepared you for your future, the unparalleled Greek life that built relationships for a lifetime, the unforgettable people that created memories, the unmatched sports that showed your Indian Pride and the unpredictable student life that made life at ASU unexplainable.

Life's best moments are unscripted, live life at ASU.

Too Hot To Handle

[springfest]

[FUN & EXCITEMENT] Springfest is always full of events that appeal to everyone. This year it was the biggest Springfest yet. Whether you wanted to Make Your Own Music Video, to play in a Texas Hold 'em poker tournament, to attend the concert on Friday, or to just come out for the food like Quan Poole, Springfest was a blast for everyone. Student Activities Board, along with many other student organizations, put in long hours and a lot of effort to make this in April a huge success. Photo by Hannah Hollingsworth

New Beginning

[welcome week]

[ALMOST FAMOUS] KIYS' DJ, Brandon Baxter, spent the afternoon promoting Welcome Week events live from the A-State Fair. Pam DeGloyer, Tara Robertson, Malinda Beeler, and Robyn Goldman represented NPC sororities and encouraged everyone interested in formal rush to come out and ask questions. Photo by Hannah Hollingsworth

[NO TIME TO BE BORED] Kasey Catt and Katie Spencer do not waste anytime being bored during the first week of school. Perhaps they have too much fun at the Residence Life Luau. Photo by Calvin Harrell

[HOT N' HEAVY] The day that hundreds of Freshmen wait all summer long for, Move In Day, finally arrived. It was the first step towards freedom from parents and living life as a college student. The only thing to dread was the actual moving in. Photo by Calvin Harrell

[NEW QUADS] Completed within a year's time, the Northpark Quads are home to more than 800 students. This apartment style residence hall was worth the wait. Photo by University Communications

Taking Over [from ground zero]

If we could sum up this year with only one word it would be construction. Between the renovation and construction of the Student Union and the Northpark Quads, we have seen our share of construction equipment on campus. The 90,000 square foot Student Union contains the campus dining hall, other franchised food choices, event and meeting facilities, an information center, student involvement offices, and the fitness center. The renovated part of the Student Union is the Reng Student Services Center that was originally built in 1964 which includes the bookstore, student services, copy and mail center, and computer labs. This new Student Union has become the center of campus where students can eat, study, get involved, and work out.

Like any other structure, Twin Towers was an aging building that reached its term of use. They came to the realization that the upkeep, renovations, and maintenance of Twin Towers would far surpass the amount to build an entirely new residence hall. Although the demolition did not take place on the first projected time this summer, Twin Towers will eventually disappear from the ASU campus. It is on the schedule to be torn down during the summer of 2007, when the number of students will be minimal.

Since Twin Towers housed over 850 students, a new residence hall was needed as soon as possible and large enough one to accommodate for the surge of incoming freshmen. A committee proposed the area behind the Chickasaw building and across Caraway from Collegiate Park Apartments for the perfect area for the new hall. Even though construction was still in progress at the Student Union, another contractor started the project of the residence hall. Worries arose that the structure would not be completed before the fall 2006 term to accommodate the students; however, all this subsided when the North Park Quads were dedicated on October 6, 2006 as was the newest residential hall on campus. These are apartment style housing with four bedrooms, two bathrooms, a kitchen and living area and are primarily for Honors College students and sophomores. The Quads are split up into five buildings that has the room for around 840 students with a common center in the middle of the buildings. The common area holds laundry, kitchen, meeting rooms, and an information desk. This residence hall was built in about a years time and now holds all the students that would have been in the other traditional housing.

Established in 1994 with philanthropic goals, the Judd Hill Foundation has given large sums of money to aid in the development of ASU. The Judd Hill Center has been placed on the lake near the ASU Pavilion and north of the Convocation Center. So far, the Judd Hill Foundation has made three one million dollar commitments. One million dollars was given to each of the following: Environmental Biology, Agricultural Biotechnology, and the new home of the ASU Foundation. The Judd Hill Center now provides sufficient office space, meeting and board rooms for receptions, meeting, and conferences. No one walking or driving through campus can miss the expansions of the University. Construction now and in the near future has taken place to improve every aspect of campus life from housing, academics, recreation, and student services. By Emily Whitmire

[STILL WAITING] Ever since construction and renovation started in 2000, students have wondered when it would be finished. This year marks the completion of the Student Union. Photo by Hannah Hollingsworth

[PASSED OUT] Construction workers were seen all over the parameter of the Student Union. Incidentally this worker passed out in a not so usual place, inside a wheelbarrow. Photo by Blake Bradley

[TWIN DOWN] Following in the footsteps of Delta Hall, Twin Towers will soon be torn down. The planned time for demolition will be the summer of 2007. The cost for maintenance and operation outweighed the amount to build a new resident hall. Photo by Hannah Hollingsworth

Swiping. Voting. Crowning.

[the road to homecoming night festivities]

How were Lacey Hawkins and Blake Johnson chosen to be the next queen and king of Arkansas State? The process for homecoming court might be a confusing one if you don't understand how it happens. First, organizations elect candidates for queen and king. Once the candidates filled out an application they then were free to campaign and show the student body how best they could represent Arkansas State. With thousands being posted on campus, it was hard to miss the sea of posters attached to trees. With posters that read "vote today" and "don't forget to vote" the candidates were trying their best to remind the student body to get out and vote. During the campaigning the candidates had to undergo a 15 minute interview with a panel of judges which included past Wilson Award Winners and Homecoming Queens. The interview would count for half of the overall score in determining who would be on court. The other half of the score would be comprised of the tally for the first vote by the student body. After the votes were tallied and the interview scores given homecoming court was announced at the Greek Step Show on Monday night of Homecoming week. The lucky winners of the Step Show were the ladies of Alpha Omicron Pi.

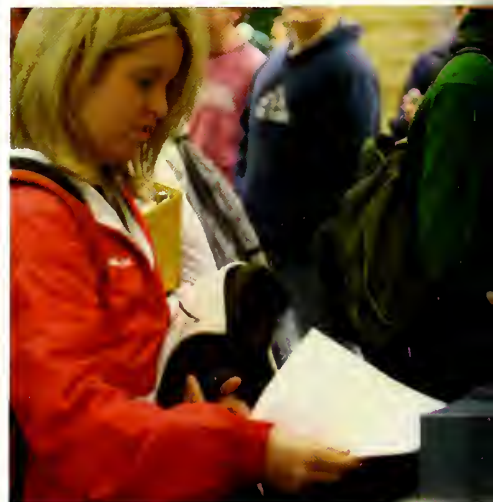

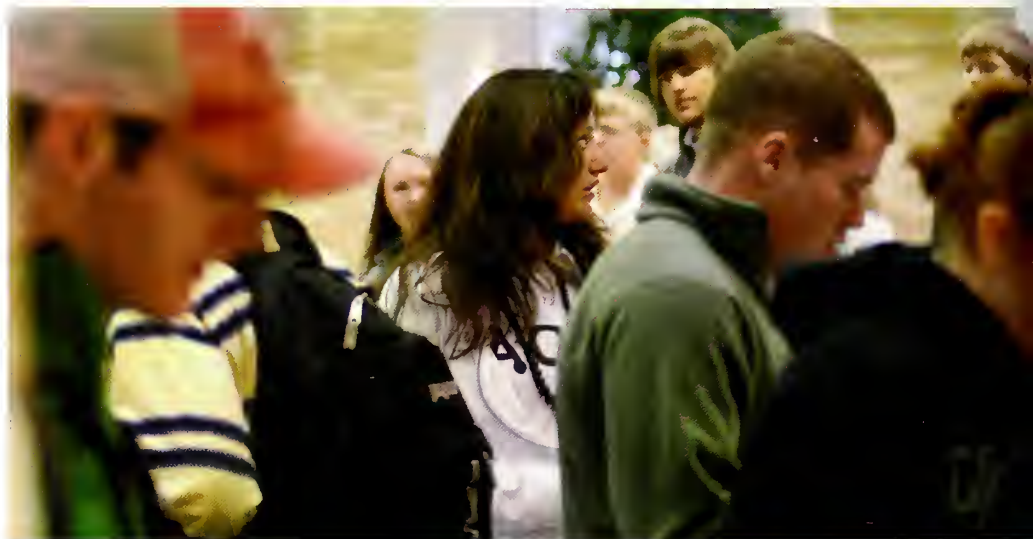

After the court was announced another vote was held the Wednesday before the game to decide which members of the court would be chosen to represent ASU as homecoming queen and king. After much anticipation the queen was announced as Lacey Hawkins and the king as Blake Johnson. Miss Hawkins was crowned by former queen Tiffany Frazier and was pronounced the new Homecoming Queen of Arkansas State.

No matter how much homework you have to do or how many papers you have to write, for some reason facebook always comes first. Without fail, checking the Facebook or Myspace profile daily outranks most of what students do on a daily basis.

Communication between students has increased do to these types of social networking web sites that provide an interactive way of communicating without being interactive with each other. With the creation of groups, students have a way to organize within groups and provide a way for information to pass easily between members.

From groups about professional organizations to random groups about "Our Three Favorite Guys...Jim, Jack, and Jose," there is a group for anyone and everyone. With the creation of the media feed, students have the ability to track their friends movements throughout the day.

About me:

I'm new to Little Rock and working in ad sales. Eventually, I hope to do more non-profit PR and develop my writing skills. I would love to write my own fashion column. If I'm not working I'm thinking about clothes, designers and the latest stores. I am also an avid reader and trying to learn how to sew. I'm lucky enough to be engaged to the love of my life. My friends are wonderful and we spend a fair amount of time together drinking and talking. New things always interest me, whether its music, clothes or people.

Tribal Leaders

helping others by showing

Who are the first smiles that greet new students to campus? The Tribal Leaders are the first line of defense in the decisions of incoming students. Whether it is knowledgeable answers to important questions or a friendly gesture on a bad day. The first impression always makes the difference.

Tribal Leaders are required to take a special leadership class that gives them an opportunity to learn about past, present and future history of ASU. This class prepares the students to be a valuable resource to incoming students and allows them to show others what is great about life at ASU.

Tribal Leaders are chosen based on application and interview. They are also chosen to represent the best of all facets of the ASU population.

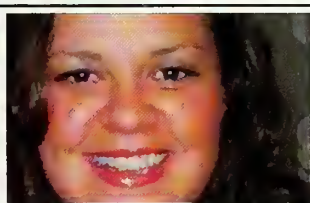

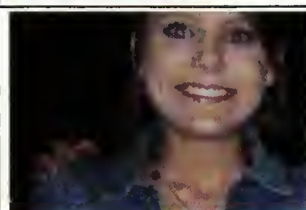

"Being a Tribal Leader is an experience of a lifetime! No other organization gives you the opportunity to work with incoming students and their families, as well as other ASU students, faculty, staff and administrators. Tribal Leaders work very hard to give incoming students and their families a memorable experience here at ASU. Working together throughout the school year and summer, the Tribal Leaders create life long friendships with one another, but also become a large family where they can always count on one another."

Student Leadership Board

Looking back over the past semester, I can say that I'm proud of the work we've accomplished. I'm glad we all had a chance to put together such events as: Freshmen Connection and The A-State High School Leadership Day. Both of the events put on by SLB were to benefit the current and potential freshman here at the great A-state.

[KAZAAM] In order to spark an interest for science in elementary students, the chemistry department hosted a magic show put on by the students. They demonstrated unique science experiments using ordinary objects and dangerous chemicals. Lindsey Reed and her partner rapidly freeze a racquet ball to the amazement of the audience. ## [ROTC]

Their Paintball team members included Elijah Stamps, Nathan Hicks, Nathan Smith, William Burns, Marion Spence, CPT BJ Vincent and Hutch Garrett. Photos courtesy of Timothy D. Durham

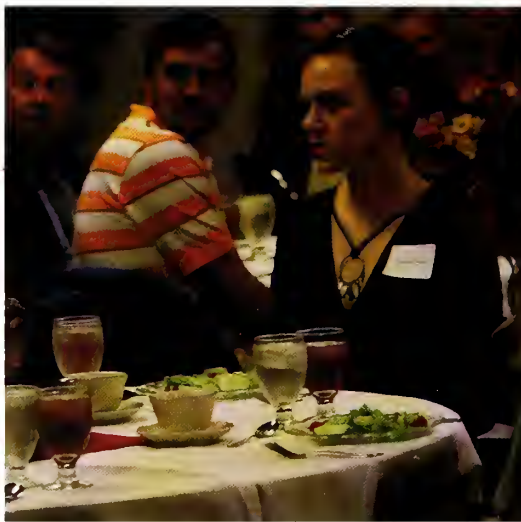

ROTC combines the kind of classroom work you would expect in college with labs and field exercises you won't find in any other class. You could find yourself repelling down a cliff, setting up a one rope bridge, visiting a Civil War Battlefield, or taking part in adventure training designed to sharpen your decision making skills in difficult situations. No matter what degree path you choose, you have the same opportunity as every other student to take advantage of this type of leadership training. You can take ROTC for up to two years without making any kind of commitment to the Army. ROTC also offers scholarships at many different levels. Scholarships are awarded on a merit basis and some are strictly reserved for those majoring in science or engineering.

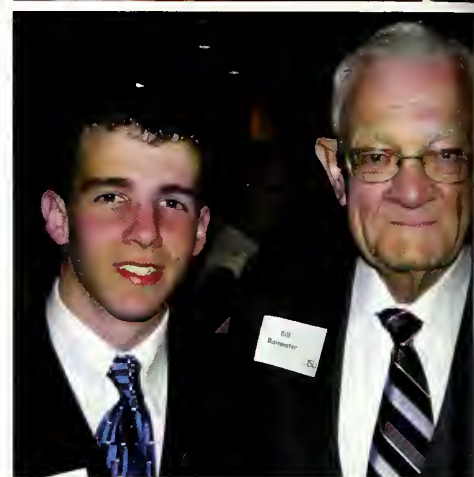

Military Science is the continued study of the styles of leadership and its practical application. Much more time is spent in the development of the operations order and its practical application in planning event driven training. Students begin to take an active role in the chain of command as their abilities increase. Subjects taught during this course year include: First Aid, Patrol Bases, Navigation Skills, Terrain Analysis, Leadership styles, Communications: Written, Hand & Arm, Oral, Electronic, Conduct of the Raid and Attack, The Troop Leading Procedures, Proper conduct of rehearsal, Counseling, The NCOER and OER system.

[3.3 MILLION] According to First Friday, a monthly report from the president, approximately $3.3 million will be directed from bond proceeds to match two grants obtained by the College of Business and the Delta Center for Economic Development. The bond proceeds and the grants will enable construction of a classroom annex to the existing business building. The renovations will be intermediate solutions for the difficult conditions found in the existing College of Business building. Ultimately, they want to build an entirely new facility planned from the ground up. Photo by Hannah Hollingsworth

Communications & Education

It is because of the dedication and innovation of the students and faculty in the college of education and college of communications that the programs are so successful. Several programs and activities give students opportunities to apply what they learn and study in the class room to real life experiences.

The mission of the College of Education is to generate and disseminate knowledge through teaching, research, and service; and to apply that knowledge to improve education and the quality of life for all individuals in a pluralistic and democratic society. We accomplish this within student-centered, intellectually challenging environments with faculty and staff dedicated to excellence.

Fitness Club

In recent years, physical fitness has been a growing concern for the United States, with epidemics of obesity, heart disease, and diabetes rising the importance of living a healthy lifestyle has never been more necessary. The state of Arkansas, as well as Arkansas State, has been doing its part to save lives by providing methods and equipment to aid in the fight against obesity.

The HYPESS has been giving students a place to stay fit for the last several years. However, its main purpose was to aid the education of students wishing to have a career in fitness, which created several scheduling conflicts for the physical education students and the average student wanting to just stay fit. The scheduling conflict gave rise to the Fitness Club, now located in the Student Union, ran by Lauren Smee. The Fitness Club houses two floors of athletic equipment. The first floor houses the weights both free and resistance while the second floor houses the machines and other cardiovascular equipment. Staying fit at Arkansas State has never been easier. Students have taken such an interest in staying fit that there is often waiting time involved in using the machines.

In an attempt to give more room to the fitness conscious and keep the HYPESS with its original purpose, Student Government members proposed the construction of a new Recreation Center housing Olympic sized swimming pools as well as an indoor running track circling the inside the top half of the building. Along with the regular amenities the students would be allowed to participate in racket ball and other activities that give an alternative to running and weight lifting.

SGA recently ratified the amendment and it will be passed on to proper administrators. Hopefully, in the near future, Arkansas State students will have a new place to stay in shape.

Lab Science

The Engineering Department has been going places. They competed in competitions across the United States. Students represented Arkansas State proudly taking top positions in different competitions.

The ASCE club built a steel bridge and a concrete canoe. The steel bridge team won second place overall at the Deep South Regional Conference at the University of Memphis. Then they competed in the National ASCE Steel Bridge Competition in Salt Lake City, Utah. They competed against the top schools in the nation and finished 33rd overall. The team was judged on construction speed, economy, stiffness, efficiency, lightness and aesthetics.

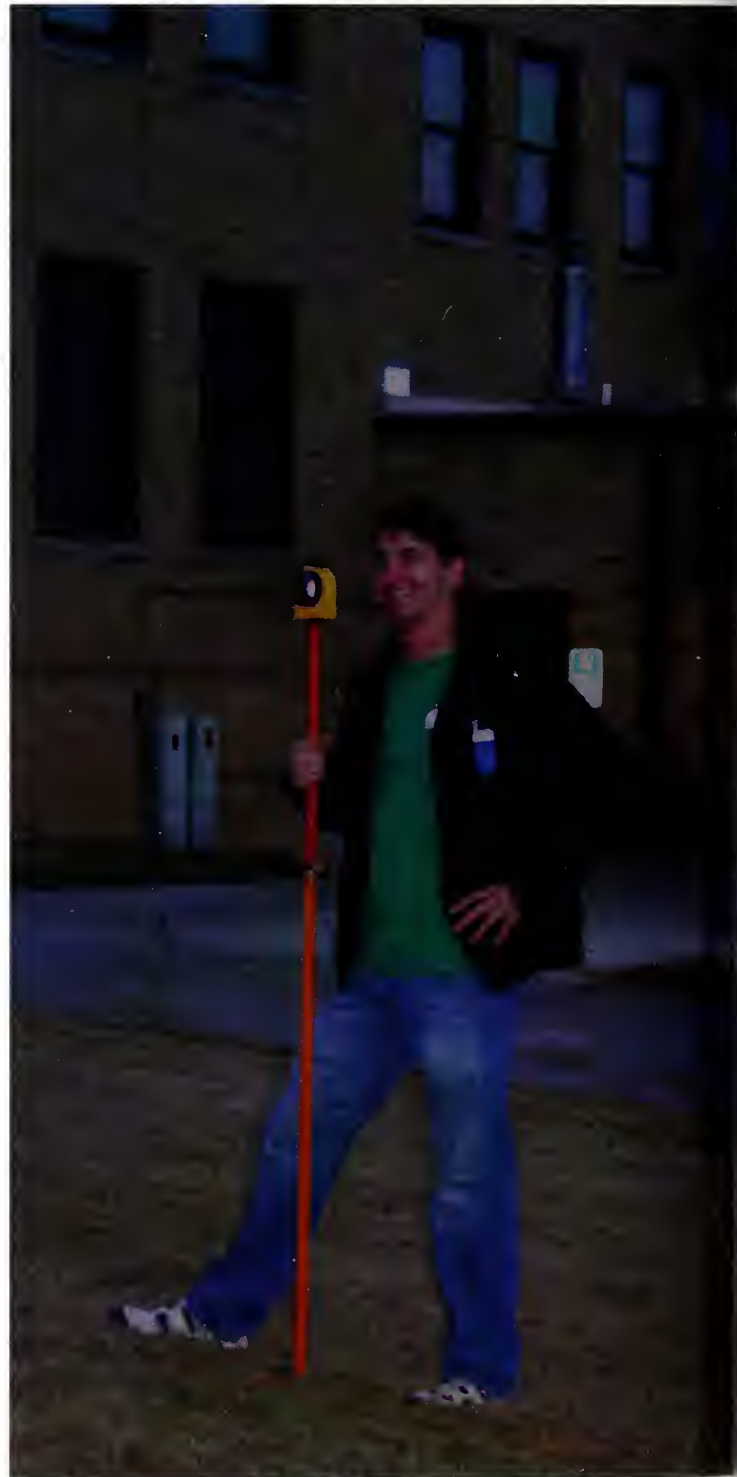

The ASCE concrete canoe team won third place overall in the Deep South Regional Conference in Memphis after taking third in men's sprint, men's endurance, and the co-ed race.

The ASME club competed in the Human Powered Vehicle contest held in Charlotte, North Carolina. This was an international event with about forty teams present. There was a racing portion of the competition that included a 100 meter sprint and a forty mile co-ed endurance race. They earned 14th place overall at the event.

Nursing

nursing <health professions> clinical science

The Nursing department at Arkansas State University is one of the top three colleges in the university and for good reason. Nursing is one of the up and coming career fields with major shortages and there is a need for highly qualified personnel.

ASU meets that need with a quality nursing program that takes the best of the best and turns them into capable nurses, x-ray technicians and medical support staff that aid doctors and medical professionals everywhere.

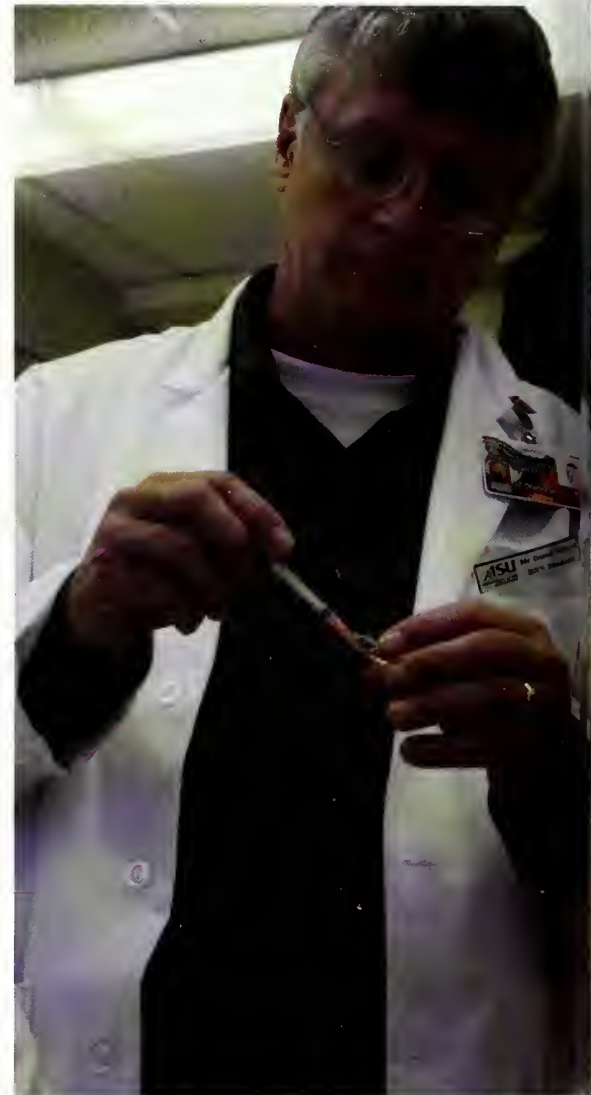

New freshman apply for the strict nursing program in June before there sophomore year, and if accepted they are started on the fast track of the industry taking advanced courses and hands on material. Approximately only 90 students are selected to start out in the School of Nursing while other students are allowed to start later in their junior and senior years.

The unscripted part of ASU nursing program is the hands on in-house practicum that is held in the nursing building and gives nursing students the ability to get experience like none other; with mock trials and scenarios right at the student's fingertips.

Wilson Hall

Wilson Hall is home to several Department Offices: English, Philosophy, World Languages, History, Political Science, Anthropology and Folklore. The central location of Wilson and the number of offices located within it make Wilson Hall an integral part of student life.

There is no student enrolled at ASU that does not currently have or has had a class taught in Wilson Hall. Whether General Education Requirements or upper level major courses, Wilson Hall has it all.

In addition to traditional classes the departments housed in Wilson sponsor special events and speakers to visit ASU. These range from the annual Delta Blues Symposium to CSI and Pre-Law camps, Model United Nation Conferences celebrating the signing of our nations Constitution.

[HATTIE CELEBRATION] Dr. Cherisse Jones-Branch, from the Department of History, sat on a panel discussing Southern Women and Politics in theory and history. # Art

As art majors, students are given countless opportunities to experiment, learn, and create. A wide variety of classes are offered and taught by professional artists and experienced professionals who really know and love the field. Students are taught to throw clay on the wheel and shape it into whatever the imagination envisions. In drawing classes, students are taught to focus on the lines, shapes, and curves of objects in order to successfully transfer what they see onto paper. Students are constantly putting their imaginations to the test and pushing past boundaries of the expected. Because professors teach more than just facts and techniques, students leave the classroom with the confidence to think for themselves.

The 2006 football season was one of highs and lows for the ASU Indians. The Tribe managed to win a record 3 road games, for the first time since moving to Division I-A. One of these victories included the scintillating ending of ASU's defeat of rival Memphis coming on Corey Leonard's completion to Patrick Higgins to cap off "The Bluff City Miracle," will be recalled by ASU fans for many years to come.

For the second consecutive season ASU was both bowl eligible and victors in 6 of their games. The dramatic victory in the home opener over Army allowed new students a taste of the excitement football can generate as the goalposts came down in celebration.

The Indians bid farewell to 16 wonderful seniors including 3 All-Conference selections, but welcome back 5 All-Conference selections, as well as Freshman of the Year in the SBC and Freshman All-American running back Reggie Arnold.

"We've talked about having a winning season. Bottom line is, the competitors will step forward and compete, regardless of what your record is"

The 2006 campaign for the Lady Indians Volleyball team ended disappointingly in the first round of the Sun Belt Tournament at the hands of Florida International. However, the season was not devoid of bright spots.

The Lady Indians were once again excellent at defending Jonesboro against opposing teams going 9-3 at home, with 6 sweeps under the tutelage of Coach Craig Cummings in his 11th season at ASU.

Drama was also in store at home on Senior Day for the Lady Indians, as they came back from two games down to defeat hated rival UALR in the final game for seniors Beth Jones, Stormy Schuler, and Randi Volkmer.

Robin Aaron was also honored as a second team All-Sun Belt Conference selection for the second year in a row and will be a bright spot next season.

"This was something that the players needed to do on their own, and they did a nice job today. I am extremely proud of them for what they did this season and where we ended up in conference play."

"Basically it's a rivalry that's been there for a long time. We just want to keep that tradition alive."

- Senior Forward Isaac Wells on the UALR rivalry.

"When we fought so hard to tie the game or come within one, they hit us in the nose again, basically a knock-out punch to most people and jumped up to another seven or eight point lead, but that's when we regrouped ... and our guys rose to the occasion"

- Head Coach Dickey Nutt, after ASU's 75-74 win over Middle Tennessee

The Indians basketball team celebrated a decade under Head Coach Dickey Nutt in the 2005-2006 season. Under his leadership they posted a 12-18 record.

Dereke Tipler was a huge bright spot for the Indians through the season as he was an All-Sun Belt Conference selection, and posted an amazing triple-double against Troy. Former walk-on Yual Banks also blossomed into an excellent player for the Tribe as he filled in admirably for the injured Jerry Nichols. As a result Banks was named a pre-season third team All-Sun Belt selection for the 2006-2007 season.

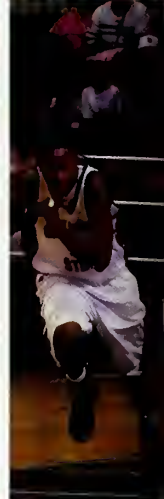

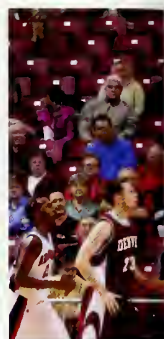

Sweeping the hated UALR Trojans in the season series for the first time in several years was a great accomplishment for the Indian basketball program as a whole in 2005-2006. They look to build off this success for future seasons to come.

"Win the conference and get to the NCAA Tournament, that's my goal. I only have one more year to do it. I know that's the same with the other seniors. We just want to lead this team to a championship and I think we can do that."

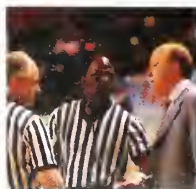

-- Center Adrianne Davie

The 2005-2006 season for the Lady Indians may not have ended in a dramatic entrance into the postseason as the previous two years had, but it was definitely a memorable season.

Winning at the Convocation Center was a nightmare for opponents as the Lady Indians carried a double digit home winning streak into the season before it was broken by national power Louisiana Tech. The team finished a stellar 9-3 at home against tough competition.

Individual records fell left and right for the Lady Indians through the 2005-2006 season as Amber Abraham became the schools all-time leading 3-point shooter with 242 made baskets. Adrianne Davie and Rudy Sims became the 14th and 15th players respectively to break the 1,000 career points scored mark. Davie also collected her second straight first team All-Sun Belt Conference honor. Sims received second team honors after being first team the year before, and dropped the third most assists in a season in school history.

*A special thanks to the Leadership Center staff, the Student Union staff, Jenny Goldman, Nicole Miller, and many others for their extra time and support given towards the production of the Indian yearbook this year.

Colophon

The 84th edition of the Arkansas State University Indian was printed by Jostens printing and publishing company 4000 S. Adams Topeka Kansas 66601. Stacy Harrington and Natasha Durham were our company sales representative and Mike Barnes was the in-plant customer service representative. Photographs were taken by the staff, the advisor, ASU Sports and Information, the Herald staff, and other freelance contributors. All photos taken by the staff and the advisor were taken with one of two Rebel XT digital cameras. All class and Greek organization portraits were taken by John Kennet at Child Art Studios in Paragould, Arkansas. The press for the 2007 Indian was 2000 copies. Gloss 80# paper stock was used. The cover was designed by the 2007 staff and Jostens Creative Services. The cover was True Life 595, with a process color mix and a black super mat. Caption copy was done in a 10-point Futura font with a lead-in of 12-point font. Photo by's were in an 8-point Futura font. Headlines were in Luna Bar font and the sub-headline was in Futura font.

Arkansas State University

As this year comes to a close we have realized the joys of living unscripted. We have taken the work out of preserving those "uh-uh" moments and have provided you with a memory book that will always help you remember the craziness of 2007. Whether it was borrowing decorations or the completion of the Student Union, you will hopefully remember that living life at Arkansas State in 2007 was unlimited, unparalleled, unforgettable, unmatched, and unpredictable.

Regardless that we have stopped covering all of those unscripted moments at ASU, we hope you will never forget that they are there. Now that you know the Carpe Diem philosophy a little bit better, maybe you can live life to the fullest and defy gravity in your education, life, and your future that Arkansas State has prepared you for. Take life by the tomahawk and go out and show the world that ASU is the place to be.

You can take a lot of things away from this year. Possibly you finally realized that by looking at all the lack of randomness, your life needed a little bit more color or maybe you lived that way all along and it just took a step back to realize that it's what was making your life the best it could be. Either way, no matter what, just know that living life at ASU means living life unscripted.

THE END OF THE BOOK YOU LOVE.
